

Terms of permission for use of copyrighted visual art works

An artist's copyright is valid for 70 years after his/her death. After that it is permitted to use his/her works free of charge. This time limit only applies to the authors' financial rights, not their honorary rights (see Article 4 of Act No. 73/1972).

Terms and conditions

1. A fee according to the tariffs ensures the right to use the agreed work in accordance with the terms and conditions.
2. A work shall be republished unchanged, that is to say, it is not permitted to write on/over or onto the work, nor to cut or change it in any other way.
3. The name of the author shall be displayed in the following manner: © Author's name/Myndstef
4. Myndstef sends an invoice and with the payment of said invoice, a permit of use is granted automatically.
5. If the terms according to these tariffs are not respected, Myndstef may, on behalf of the author concerned, claim damages in the form of a raise of the tariffs by up to 100%.

Special terms

In specific cases authors make additional claims for the use of the copyrighted works, for example special conditions on the display of a specific text or name and a claim to receive colour samples for printing for approval. The Myndstef office provides information on such special claims of authors.

Authors' honorary rights

The name of the author must always be mentioned when a visual artwork is displayed and it is also prohibited to change the work or misuse it in any other way. General rules of the Copyright Act are applicable, see Article 4 of the Act No. 73/1972. It is pointed out that these author's rights are not transferable. In isolated cases it is however permitted to alter an author's work to adapt it to a specific design or setup but in such delimited cases the author's permission is always required. Myndstef serves as intermediary for such requests.

Not included in the fee

The tariffs of Myndstef applies only to the copyright fee as its use is specifically defined in each instance. A fee for a copy that is to be used for printing, publication or display in an electronic environment does not fall under these tariffs and the making of such a copy must be paid for separately. The party receiving permission of use according to these tariffs cannot share the publication right with others, for example by downloading copyrighted material for use for educational purposes.